1. OVERVIEW

The Consortium of the Free University of Bozen-Bolzano (Italy), the Blekinge Tekniska Högskola (Sweden), and the Technische Universität Kaiserslautern (Germany) offer a two year (120 ECTS credits) Joint Masters Programme, named European Master Course in Software Engineering (EMSE).

Mission

The objective of EMSE is to educate professionals in the field of Software Engineering. Software engineering aims at the creation of high quality software in a systematic, controlled, and efficient manner. The participants will be able learn and use sound engineering principles and practices in order obtain economically viable software that is reliable and works on real machine.

Description of the Programme

A curriculum in Software Engineering covers a wide range of topics, such as software process management, verification and validation, software design, and requirements engineering, and a pool of specialities like software quality, distributed systems and development, open source software, and agile methods.

Structure of the Programme

The curriculum consists of core topics, specificities, a project, an internship, and a master thesis.

The full structure can be accessed at <http://www.inf.unibz.it/emse-dokuwiki/emse/description>

The programme foresees a mobility period in two different universities of the Consortium. The student will spend one year in one university (the "first university"), and one year in another university (the "second university") according to a learning path, i.e. the first year and the second year university. The learning paths and the relative study plans are accessible at http://www.inf.unibz.it/emse-dokuwiki/emse/learning_paths

Project and thesis work will be carried out at the second university and will be jointly supervised and evaluated by two supervisors, one from each university.

(for more information see <http://www.inf.unibz.it/emse-dokuwiki/emse/rules>)

Starting term

The term starts between August – October depending on the first university regulation.

Learning outcomes

EMSE aims at training students in emerging research domains that shape the future of Software Engineering. It prepares students for industry and research carriers as PhD programmes.

After completing the EMSE studies the student will have gained expertise, competence, and practical skills on software management and quality, innovation and creativity, software process and product standards, social and economic market of IT, and teamwork.

The international dimension of the Masters Course guarantees that students familiarise with different educational methods and a multicultures.

Language

All courses are taught in English.

Students are requested to get at least 2 ECTS in the local language (free of charge) in each university visited.
